

Third Global Conference on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands

Moving the Global Oceans Agenda Forward

January 23-28, 2006, UNESCO, Paris

Conference Background and Purpose

The Third Global Conference on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands will mobilize high-level policy attention, topical working groups, analytical papers and other contributions to provide a review of progress achieved and obstacles faced in the implementation of international targets on oceans, coasts, and small island developing States (SIDS), especially those related to the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development (WSSD), the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs), and other related agreements such as the Convention on Biological Diversity and Agenda 21 (please see Table 1 on page 3 for a summary of major international ocean commitments).

General Conference Purposes

The Global Conference seeks to:

—Help accelerate progress in the attainment of international ocean targets;

—Promote synergy and mobilize active partnership/coalitions for effective implementation of programs supported by governments, international agencies, national and regional authorities, nongovernmental organizations, natural and social scientists, and the private sector to attain the international oceans targets;

—Develop recommendations for tangible next steps and progress markers to track progress in the attainment of the international ocean targets;

—Provide a multi-stakeholder forum for cross-sectoral South-North dialogue among developed countries, developing countries, small island developing States, and countries with economies in transition in advancing the global oceans agenda;

—Advance the development of capacity for integrated oceans governance in developing countries, small island developing States, and countries with economies in transition, especially in relation to the implementation of the Mauritius Strategy in SIDS nations;

Other Conference Supporters

—Examine selected emerging and unresolved issues related to oceans, coasts, and SIDS focusing especially on issues which can be advanced through cross-sectoral and cross-group analyses and dialogue; and —Develop specific recommendations for engaging decision makers, the private sector, and the public in support of national, regional, and global interventions towards achieving the global oceans agenda.

Special Emphases

The Global Conference will focus special attention on:

- Two major goals of the World Summit on Sustainable Development:

Implementation of the results of the Mauritius Strategy (January 2005) guiding the sustainable development of small island developing States, with emphasis on specific actions to advance ocean and coastal management which can be taken in the near-term, including building on the SIDS consortium of universities created at the Mauritius International Meeting

Progress in the implementation of the UNEP Global Programme of Action for the Protection of the Marine Environment from Land-Based Activities (GPA) and preparations for the GPA Intergovernmental Review (IGR-2), to be held in Beijing, China, in October 2006. This includes development of specific recommendations on enhanced means for linking freshwater to coasts to oceans for presentation at the World Water Forum in Mexico City, Mexico, March 2006, and at the GPA IGR-2.

- Lessons Learned From Tsunami Disaster of December 2004
- Two emerging/unresolved ocean issues:
 - High seas governance, particularly regarding development of a regime for exploitation of biotech resources and for the protection of sensitive resources and biodiversity
 - Oceans and climate, particularly issues related to ocean acidification, carbon dioxide sequestration, and Arctic change

Conference Organizers and Sponsors

The Third Global Conference is organized by the Global Forum on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands, organized informally in 2001 and formalized at the WSSD in Johannesburg in September 2002. The Glo-

Box. 1. Global Forum on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands - Goals

The Global Forum responds to major needs at the international scale:

- Promotion of cross-sectoral dialogue on ocean, coastal and SIDS issues among governments, nongovernmental organizations, intergovernmental organizations, the private sector, and the scientific community;
- A mechanism for oceans advocacy at the highest political levels; and
- A venue for linking oceans and freshwater concerns.

The major goals of the Global Forum are to:

- Work together with governments, international and intergovernmental organizations, nongovernmental organizations (environmental, scientific/technical, industry, foundations), and others to effectively implement, at national and regional levels, major international agreements on oceans;
- Work as a catalyst to mobilize knowledge, resources, and organizational action to advance the global oceans agenda;
- Raise the international profile of oceans, coasts, and SIDS in all relevant global, regional, and sub-regional fora and mobilize resources to address these issues; and
- Mobilize public awareness on oceans, coasts, and SIDS, and promote information sharing and dissemination.

bal Forum aims to advance the interests of oceans—incorporating 72% of the Earth; coasts—the home of 50% of the world's population; and islands—43 of the world's nations are small island developing States, which are especially dependent on the oceans. The Forum is composed of experts from governments, intergovernmental and international organizations, and non-governmental organizations (environmental, scientific/technical, industry, and foundations) with the common goal of achieving the sustainable development of oceans, coasts, and small island developing States. The Global Forum Steering Committee, responsible for organizing the conference, may be found on p.17. Global Forum goals are noted in Box 1.

The conference is part of the activities of the GEF project on Fostering a Global Dialogue on Oceans, Coasts, and SIDS, and on Freshwater-Coastal-Marine Interlinkages.

Key Conference Features

The Global Conference will feature:

- High-level presentations on selected topics by high-level ocean officials from around the world;
- Topical panels bringing together experts from governments, international agencies, nongovernmental organizations, scientists, and the private sector, and featuring stage-setting analytical papers;
- Structured Concurrent Dialogue Sessions on specific topics on which the Conference is expected to achieve progress; and
- Opportunities for special groups and communities of interest to advance particular aspects of the global oceans agenda.

The intent is to bring carefully crafted analyses, high-level perspectives, and perspectives from all ocean sectors and areas of the world to focus on tangible next steps in the implementation of the global oceans agenda. The conference will maximize opportunities for meaningful dialogue among the expert participants through the facilitation of the Concurrent Dialogue Sessions, and discussions in special workshops and side events.

Background

This Global Conference is the third in a series begun in 2001. The first conference, Oceans and Coasts at Rio+10: Toward the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development (WSSD), Johannesburg (December 2001), was useful in placing ocean, coastal, and SIDS issues on the WSSD agenda. As noted in the UN Secretary General's report on Oceans and the Law of the Sea (March 3, 2003), A/58/65): 7.

The persistent efforts of all interested groups, beginning with the Global Conference on Oceans and Coasts at Rio+10, persuaded the preparatory meetings for the Johannesburg Conference that not only was UNCLOS not the end of the road, but also that many of the commitments of the UNCED at Rio remained unfulfilled.

Following the WSSD, the Global Forum's second major international conference, the Global Conference on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands: Mobilizing for Implementation of the Commitments Made at the 2002 World Summit on Sustainable Development on Oceans, Coasts, and Small Island Developing States, was useful in spurring the process of initial implementation of the WSSD commitments. This meeting proved especially important because the Commission on Sustainable Development is not scheduled to examine ocean issues until 2014.

Relationship to Other Global Efforts

The Third Global Conference on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands builds on the two past global conferences, and is directly related to a number of other international efforts and global conferences.

The Ocean Policy Summit International Conference on Integrated Ocean Policy: National and Regional Experiences, Prospects, and Emerging Practices (held in Lisbon, Portugal, on October 10-14, 2005). This conference explicitly considered advances in the WSSD and MDG goals of achieving integrated oceans governance at national and regional levels, and made considerable progress in the collective understanding of how national and regional ocean policies may be enhanced and further expanded. Results from The Ocean Policy Summit will be featured at the Paris Global Conference.

The 4th World Water Forum (to be held in Mexico City, Mexico, on March 16-22, 2006). Results of the Paris global oceans conference will provide input to the 4th World Water Forum particularly regarding specific recommendations for better linking freshwater to coasts to oceans and development of a joint program of work involving freshwater and ocean institutions.

The Second Intergovernmental Review (IGR-2) of the Global Programme of Action for the Protection of the Marine Environment from Land-Based Activities (GPA), to be held in Beijing, China, on October 16-20, 2006. The Paris global oceans conference will develop specific recommendations for further advancement of the GPA for input into the intergovernmental process of the IGR-2.

Preparatory Work for and Expected Outputs from the Third Global Conference on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands

Various working groups, task forces and organizations are preparing background papers, reports and recommendations for discussion at the Global Conference. Some of these are highlighted below.

Other groups and organizations are kindly invited to let the Conference Secretariat know of other preparatory efforts that should be included in the materials to be distributed and discussed at the conference. In particular, groups, organizations, national and international entities that have prepared assessments of implementation of WSSD and MDG goals are kindly invited to send these materials to the Conference Secretariat.

Major expected outputs from the Global Conference include:

- Co-Chairs' Report, incorporating:
 - progress report on WSSD and MDG goals related to oceans, coasts, and SIDS

PANEL 10. IMPROVING HIGH SEAS GOVERNANCE

Session Goals:

- This session (organized by the Working Group on Improving High Seas Governance) will address gaps in the international policy framework regarding 'high seas' governance (marine issues in areas beyond national jurisdiction) with emphasis on issues related to marine genetic resources and their bioprospecting; and issues related to protection of sensitive resources and habitats in the high seas, with a special focus on how fishing practices may impact on these resources and habitats. The session will examine the major issues involved in high seas governance, with the aim of summarizing the findings and making recommendations for specific next steps that should be taken by the international community on the topic at the occasion of relevant international processes being targeted.
- The Panel will deal with the theme utilizing An Ecosystem Approach to high seas and the deep seabed; it will provide an overview of high seas and deep seabed-related issues, followed by presentations organized in two focal areas: deep seabed genetic resources, and high seas fisheries governance. Presentations under both focal areas will address, as appropriate, science and technology aspects, private sector involvement and perspectives, environmental, and policy/legal aspects of the issues under consideration.

Expected Outcomes of the Session:

- Provide multi-stakeholder input to the discussions of the Ad Hoc Open-ended Informal Working Group established by the UN General Assembly to study issues relating to the conservation and sustainable use of marine biological diversity beyond areas of national jurisdiction (scheduled for February 2006). The following processes will also be targeted by multi-stakeholder input to be generated at the Session: the eighth session of the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity, the review conference of fish stock agreements, the seventh session of the UN Informal Consultative Process on Oceans and the Law of the Sea, and the review of measures recommended by the UNGA on the protection of vulnerable marine ecosystems from destructive fisheries practices.
- As appropriate and feasible, the Working Group will attempt to reach cross-group consensus on the issues. Alternatively, the Working Group may focus largely on providing information to the global oceans community on the dimensions of the issue and by identifying areas where more studies are needed, as well as, areas of agreement and disagreement among stakeholders, and policy options for addressing/resolving the issues.
- The multistakeholder dialogue sessions related to this session will focus on: 1) deep seabed genetic resources, and 2) high seas fisheries governance.

World Ocean Network 3rd International Meeting

The World Ocean Network (www.worldoceannetwork.org) and its partners invite Global Conference participants and all organizations reaching the public at large to take part in the 3rd International Meeting "Acting together for the future of the Blue Planet". It will be held in NAUSICAA, Centre National de la Mer, in Boulogne/Mer, France, from January 29th to February 2nd and will immediately follow the Global Conference on Oceans, Coasts, and Islands.

The event is organized under the aegis of the IOC/UNESCO and the UNEP/GPA and with the participation of Jean-Michel Cousteau, Chair of the World Ocean Network Committee of Honour.

Participants of the 3rd International Meeting will help further develop an action plan to inspire a behaviour change on a global scale. They will have the opportunity to state their priorities regarding public mobilization for a sustainable use of the ocean. They will assess already implemented joint activities and plan further cooperation for the next three years. We estimate that we can reach up to 200 million people per year.

Conference organizers suggest booking rooms in a hotel at one of three locations:

- A: Invalides/Tour Eiffel/Ecole Militaire. These hotels are within walking distance from UNESCO. This area is relatively quiet, although there are many restaurants nearby.
- B: Quartier Latin/Odeon/Seine/Pantheon. For those wishing to stay in a lively area, there are many hotels in the Saint Germain des Pres/Latin Quarter area; to get to UNESCO, take Metro Line 10 direction 'Boulogne' and get off at station 'Séguir'.
- C: Etoile-Arc de Triomphe. This is an upmarket area in central Paris, next to the Champs-Élysées and major tourist sites; to get to UNESCO, take Metro line 6, direction 'Nation' and get off at station 'Sèvres-Lecourbe'.

The best hotel prices may be obtained via the Internet. We suggest that you go directly to the hotel websites such as hotels.com, expedia.com, orbitz.com, travelocity.com, cheaprooms.com, parishotels.com, and kayak.com.

English is the official language of the conference.
